

memory, and sets the extracted game program in a storage region for execution of a game.

11. The gaming machine according to claim 8, further comprising a display, wherein said game type selector includes touch panel switches configured to change the type of game displayed on said display.

12. The gaming machine according to claim 8, further comprising a display configured to display a gaming demonstration screen thereon during a changing of said type of game.

13. The gaming machine according to claim 8, further comprising a display, wherein said unit gaming fee selector includes touch panel switches configured to enable selection of the unit gaming fee displayed on said display.

* * * * *